HealthWrights & PROJIMO Need Your Help

HealthWrights and PROJIMO are both in need of funding for our continuing work.

David Werner's CBR workshops around the world improve the lives of hundreds of children, such as Joarling. Until he attended David's workshop, Joarling, who has spina bifida, had never walked. With the help of a parapodium (a standing frame designed for walking) and parallel bars, he immediately began taking big steps. With crutches, he was soon able to walk all over town.

In addition to helping individuals like Joarling, HealthWrights assists CBR programs around the world through our newsletters and books, and slide shows. Our last newsletter was mailed to 1500 subscribers in 130 countries. These newsletters and all our books are on our website for free access. This multiplies the reach and impact of our work.

PROJIMO continues to provide services below cost to many poor families. Please help PROJIMO help disabled children.

We are asking your help in three areas.

1. Cash. Any amount will be a great help. To donate, please see other side of this page.

2. Donors. Please let us know of any persons, organizations or foundations that might be willing to fund our work.

3. Your estate. Please consider including HealthWrights in your estate planning. Just a few gifts of capital or property can help our important work continue into the future.

Bird Prints of the Sierra Madre Charcoal Ink Paintings

by David Werner

These 11" by 17" prints of paintings by David Werner portray four characteristic birds of Mexico's Sierra Madre Occidental. They are available to you for a small contribution.

While each painting is a work of art, it is also a detailed study of the bird species, together with a botanically accurate depiction of typical plant species and native insects.

David Werner studied Sumie ink painting under a Zen Master in Kioto, Japan, in 1962. His black and white bird portraits reveal a blend between Eastern emphasis on essence and space, and Western emphasis on detail.

GREAT GIFT IDEA!

Please send me the following prints of David Werner's BIRDS OF THE SIERRA MADRE (Circle the print(s) you would like.)

I enclose my contribution to HealthWrights of $10.00 for each print or $30.00 for the complete set.

Signed prints are available for $20.00 each or $60.00 for the complete set.
